BOTH SIDES IN STEEL FIGHT CLAIM GAIN

FIRST DISORDER COMES AT YOUNGSTOWN WHEN PICKETS GET INTO CLASH

Both Sides Claim Advantages But No Change is Apparent

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH) YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 1.—The first disorder in the Mahoning Valley's steel strike came last night when Pasquale Vincencio was shot in the right arm during a skirmish between pickets and workmen who were entering the coke plant of the Republic Iron and Steel Company. John Patterson, a foreman in the plant charged with the shooting, is at liberty under his own recognizance.

Patterson, driving an automobile load of workmen, charges that pickets at the mill entrance stoned the machine as it approached. He emptied his revolver at the strikers, Vincencio being the only man hit. The injured man says that he was not one of the pickets, but was waiting for a street car.

More men entered the Ohio works of the Carnegie Steel Company this morning than on any day since the plant was closed down, observers report and an attempt to operate some departments, at least, is expected soon.

Both Sides Confident PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 1.—Little change was apparent in the strike situation at the Bethlehem Steel Company's plants today. Both sides continued to issue conflicting statements. The company claimed that many of the workers who answered the strike call on Monday had returned to work and that the strike had at no time seriously affected production. A statement issued by the company last night said that 88 per cent of its men were working, which was a gain of three per cent over those reported at work the preceding day. David Williams, the strike leader, declared that reports received at his headquarters show that from 75 to 80 per cent of the workers were out.

Contrary Claims PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 1.—With labor leaders advancing the claim that all plants in the Pittsburgh district have been crippled by the steel workers' strike, and the employers maintaining that more men are returning to work each day and that the mills are operating at nearly full time, the situation today remained as it has been for several days past, virtually unchanged.

According to the latest figures from strike headquarters 375,000 iron and steel workers of the country are on strike, this representing an increase of 33,000 over last week's total.

The first show of strength by the strikers came last night, when a

North Lewisburg Carpenter Gives all the Credit for Wife's Better Health to Nerv-Worth

Most convincing are these signed endorsements from well known and neighborhood users. They largely account for the Nerv-Worth drug's rapidly growing trade in this famous family growing tonic. Mark the importance of Carpenter Good's statement: "My wife was extremely nervous and suffered terribly with stomach trouble. In doing her housework she would be stricken with extreme pains in her side and stomach. I bought her a bottle of Nerv-Worth and her nerves are no longer troublesome. Her appetite is better and she has improved in health in every respect. We both certainly are highly praising Nerv-Worth. It's the greatest thing ever in medicine and its speedy action is marvelous. I am only too glad to recommend it."

Fifty Arrests Made in Riot Case at Omaha

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 1.—Fifty men and boys are under arrest today in connection with the rioting last Sunday night when a negro held for attacking a white girl, was lynched, the mayor dragged through the streets with a rope about his neck and the county court house badly damaged by fire set by the mob. All of those under arrest are held for either murder, inciting to riot, or assault to commit murder and willful destruction of property.

Dr. E. C. Henry, physician attending Mayor Smith stated this morning that his condition was such that he thought all danger was past. Ten negroes were arrested in Council Bluffs, Iowa, just across the river from here late yesterday when the discovery was made that they had a stock of guns and ammunition.

HERE'S LATEST DOPE ON STYLES FOR GENTLEMEN

Yes, the Men, Like to Have "Inside Information," Too, Girls!

VESTS TO BE HIGHER

But So Are Prices, so Everything Goes Up in Perfect Harmony

A remark is frequently heard that women studiously pore over the fashion plates in the various department stores or pattern counters to determine the leading styles and "what's what" for the coming season, but it is also known that the men, especially the young ones, are just as anxious to be top notch dressers, and what is termed "classy."

For the benefit of some of these young men who are just out of khaki and navy blue, and want to be tasty dressers, a few hints in regard to the latest in men's wearing apparel are here given. First, of all, brown, green, and oxford will be the leading colors for the fall, with the old reliable dark blue as a safe fourth. No particular patterns seem to have a greater vogue than any other. Shaded stripes and checks, interwoven mixtures, mixed patterns with sprinklings of green, suits. Double breasted effects will

Deep Waistline The deep waistline which was introduced in the spring, will continue to be worn during the winter; there will also be seen form fitting suits, but so far as the older men are concerned, there will be no belted suits. Double breasted effects will be very classy, and coats will have two and three buttons for fastening, instead of the one button effect.

Vests Higher Too Vests, most of them will be double breasted, and will be cut a little higher than last season. Fancy vests in subdued colors may be seen but they will not be purchased generally. The pockets of all vests will be flapless and there will be few collars if any.

Trousers will again be permitted to have belts of their own, and cuffs, too, if they want them. Otherwise there is not much change in length, width or fullness.

FOR SENSITIVE NAILS If your nails are unduly sensitive rub them occasionally with a little wax and alum.

Negro "Safely" Landed in Jail; Mob Disperses

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH) MERCHANTVILLE, N. J., Oct. 1.—With the negro who is alleged to have assaulted a white woman here on Monday safely in jail, the authorities expressed relief from a situation which they had feared for the last two days might result seriously. The assault caused intense excitement amongst the residents of Merchantville and nearby towns and open threats of violence were heard. For 24 hours a posse of more than 500 armed men searched the surrounding country for the negro, but after his capture and the assurance by the police that he would be brought to a speedy trial the posse disbanded. The usual quiet prevailed today.

The negro, who was identified as James Whiting, a farm-hand, was captured last night by a detective along the banks of a creek near

CUMMINS RAILWAY BILL IS HELD TO BE UNCONSTITUTIONAL BY CHARLES E. HUGHES IN OPINION MADE PUBLIC

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH) WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Holding unconstitutional the provisions of the Cummins bill for railroad reorganization which would take for the government excess earnings of the roads over a "fair return," an opinion by Charles E. Hughes, rendered to the Association of Railway Executives, has been filled with the House Interstate Commerce Committee considering the bill. Former Justice Hughes contends in brief, that if rates which produce so-called excess earnings are just and reasonable rates, as they are presumed to be when fixed and regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission, then the earnings from those rates are the property of the railroad companies, which may be taxed, but cannot be taken away as that, he argues, would be confiscation.

"All the rates fixed and maintained," he says, "are at all times open to inquiry and the Commission has full authority to insist that they shall never be more than just and reasonable. Section 6 of the bill providing for the payment to the Railroad Transportation Board of the so called 'excess' earnings does not provide for a determination that the rates under which the described 'excess' has been collected by the carrier were not just and reasonable rates for the services rendered. If, however, the rates thus fixed, charged and received by a carrier are to be deemed just and reasonable for the services rendered, the carrier is entitled to these receipts as its property, and the taking by the government of any portion of these receipts (except under a valid tax) for general government purposes or for the benefit of other carriers would appear to be a taking of property contrary to the Fifth Amendment of the Federal Constitution."

"The provision of the pending bill is not a tax laid upon all carriers with respect either to gross receipts, or net receipts, or any other basis for the assessment of a tax, but is simply a requirement of the payment to the government board of the 'excess' earnings of a carrier which the Interstate Commerce Commission determines to be more than a 'fair return' upon the value of its property. Such an exaction goes beyond the limits of any decision known to me, and if rates un-

HIGH PAY AND GOOD TREATMENT GARY'S POLICY

Head of U. S. Steel Corporation Denies Alleged Attacks Upon Employees

BEFORE SENATE BODY

Claims Company Pays Top Wages of Any Industrial Concern

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Denying that the United States Steel corporation had mistreated its men, as charged by union labor leaders, Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the corporation, told the senate committee investigating the steel strike today that in his opinion there was no basic industry in the world which had paid larger wages than his company.

"It has been stated before committee," said Judge Gary, "that the steel companies have been guilty of ill treatment of their employees. Some statements have been made on misinformation and some absolutely without foundation."

"I wish to state, Mr. Chairman, that there is no basic industry in this country nor in the world in my opinion, which has paid larger wages than the United States Steel corporation, and perhaps not as large, nor has treated their employees in greater respect and consideration if as great."

"It has been charged that during the pending strike the subsidiary companies have been guilty of attacking and mistreating employees. There isn't a vestige of truth in that statement. Photographs were displayed here, and it was said a woman was killed. This photograph has been posted all over America with a line over it 'Mrs. Fannie Sellins' body gloriously mistreated by the steel trust's fiendish crew.'"

"She was shot at Breckinridge, Pa. We have no works, no men there. If she was killed, it was without even the knowledge of the corporation or any of its employees."

"Hasn't your company investigated that matter in view of the charge?" asked Chairman Kenyon. "The verdict of the coroner's jury," said the witness, "made it certain that no agent of ours had the remotest connection with her death."

"I have the certified copy of that verdict," said Senator Phipps, republican, Colorado, "I'll file that."

"We have discussed the incident with some of our people," Judge Gary resumed, "not because we thought they might be guilty, but for information. Our orders and our policy are against any activity which could lead to anything of that kind."

R. V. Lindabury, counsel for the corporation, said the woman was der which the so-called 'excess' earnings are collected by the carrier are to be deemed to be just and reasonable rates, fixed and maintained as such under the authority of law, I am unable to escape the conclusion that the requirement as to the payment of the so-called 'excess' earnings of a carrier exceeds the constitutional authority of Congress as applied to carriers not transacting their business under a Federal franchise or contract imposing such a condition."

To the argument that the fixing of rates by a regulating authority may be considered only tentative, and that the rates so fixed may be assumed to be unreasonable if they produce excess earnings, Judge Hughes holds that what is a reasonable rate can not be determined in this way, which is not a regulation of either rate or service, but of earnings. Congress and the Interstate Commerce Commission, he says, have no power to permit the collection of rates which are extortionate, even for a temporary period, and, therefore, what is a reasonable rate for a given service at a given time must be ascertained at the time the rate is made.

Judge Gary said in his opinion the "shot probably was fired by the strikers themselves." He added that his company had no interest in the coal mines where the riot occurred.

Senator Phipps read a certified copy of the inquest record in the case. The jury's verdict said the killing was by persons unknown and that the deputy sheriffs involved were firing in self-defense.

Chairman Kenyon asked whether deputy sheriffs were sworn in at the corporation's plants and were on the company's pay-roll.

"I should say yes," said Mr. Gary. "So far as I know they have had nothing to do with any of these outbreaks."

He added that it was possible that some of the company's guards had participated in disturbances since the steel strike began, but pointed out that Mrs. Sellins was killed before the strike started.

Referring to testimony of President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, that Jefferson D. Pierce, a union organizer, had been beaten by company agents while attempting to organize unions in the steel mills and died from injuries, Judge Gary read an affidavit which he said had been sent to his office on September 27, by Pierce's son.

"I was with my father the night he received his injuries," said the affidavit, "and he said they were not caused by any agents of the steel corporation."

"He was injured by a member of the I. W. W., faction which was endeavoring to gain control of the organization. I wish to reiterate most emphatically the charge of Mr. Gompers that his death was caused by any agent of the U. S. Steel Corporation. He died one year later of cancer resulting from the wound."

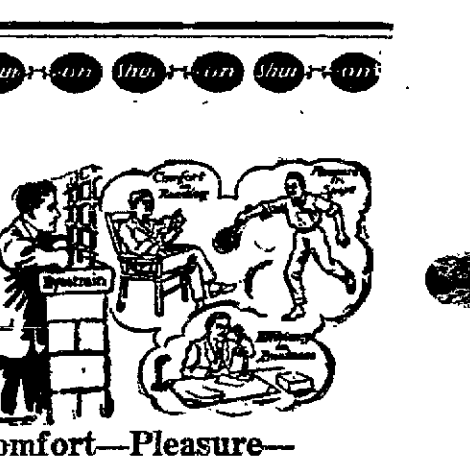

MASS FOR P. SULLIVAN Requiem mass will be celebrated at 9 o'clock Friday morning for Patrick Sullivan who died suddenly at his home yesterday morning.

Services will be held at St. Gerard's church of which the deceased was a faithful member, and interment will be made in Gethsemani cemetery.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning Wash away all the stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do. To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify, and freshen the entire alimentary tract before eating more food. Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

Street Car Service
ACCORDING to a story published yesterday in the Times, the Ohio Electric Railway Company has at last seen the light and is going to consult Lima citizens about the kind of street car service that residents of this city desire. In other words, if the news story is to be believed, the company is going to allow the home folks something to say about their street cars.
The company, it is reported, is going to ask the Citizens Committee to approve a proposal to make a new contract with the city for street car service, whereby the price of car rides will be revised every six months on the basis of the company's showing as to its receipts and expenditures.
If a new contract is entered into, or its franchise extended for a period of twelve years, the company proposes to extend its lines to various factories, place twenty-five new cars in operation and arrange for a ten minute schedule.
It also expects, so it is said, to ask approval of the council and citizens committee, of the plan to use the one-man cars that are said to be successfully operated in Fort Wayne, Terre Haute and other cities.
There is no doubt whatever that if the citizens committee, civic organizations, the city council and the Ohio Electric should meet on common ground and make a sensible, fair and reasonable agreement for a new franchise for street car service it would be the best thing that has happened in Lima for years.

The Times does not believe, however, that ten minute street car service is sufficiently frequent for a city the size of Lima. Possibly the street car company can prove that it is not possible nor profitable to operate the cars more often, but it is a fact that twelve minutes is too long for those who "have missed a car" to wait for the next one.
Outside of this one objection the Lima Times heartily approves the plan to re-open the franchise and grant a new one that will meet the approval of the city council and the citizens generally.
Regarding one-man cars the Times is like many others—it is willing to be shown. If the cars are not perfectly safe we do not want them. If any real injustice is done the men operating the cars it will not do to install them. But if the service can be improved, cars run more often, at an expense not greatly increased, and they are safe, then the people of the city will want them installed.
The Ohio Electric has shown an inclination to meet the people of Lima on common ground. Let the city now consider what is best for it, in the way of street car service, and speak right out for its needs.

Let the People Decide
COUNCIL tonight will be asked, at a special session called by Mayor Simpson, to allow the voters of Lima to decide whether they want to install a municipal lighting system, or rather the poles and wire, the energy to be purchased from the lowest and best bidder.
No public controversy has attracted more attention than the argument over a new contract for street lighting. And citizens have generally taken a stand for or against the proposal for the city to own its own system.
Council has previously refused to allow a second vote on the question. The Times believes, however, that the voters of the city ought to be allowed to again have an opportunity to vote on the question. And this paper, in making this statement, is frank enough to say that it does not believe municipal plants are a success.
But let the voters decide, Mr. Council! This is a country where the majority rules. If the voters turn the proposition down again let's then forget it forever.

When Interest Works Overtime
WHEN Liberty bonds were being sold statisticians in every city figured up to a nicety just how much of an accumulation would result from a hundred dollar bond in a term of years, then putting the coupons, as they come due, in a savings account at compounded interest. The general public was somewhat impressed, but not particularly enthused because the period of waiting was so long.
As a matter of fact interest does work very faithfully. In season and out, by night as well as by day. It is perhaps, more conspicuous when working against you than when at labor in your behalf. A suit that was recently filed in a Missouri court has drawn national attention to the labors of interest, and illustrates very well the point that Liberty bond salesmen made during the war.
In 1872 William Powell bought a horse from William R. Clark for $200. He gave his note in payment with interest compounded at 10 per cent. The note remained unpaid, altho certain payments of interest were made on it. Powell died April 12, 1912, and at that time the interest and principal on the unpaid note amounted to $6,000. A few months later Mrs. Alice Powell Gilmore gave Clark a note for $2000, secured by a deed of trust on her undivided share of the farm of 129 acres left to her and her brother by her father's will. The brother refused to make a payment, contending that the note was outlawed and he was sustained by the courts. Now the sister is suing for the return of her note for $2000 with the interest she has paid and a relinquishment of the deed of trust on her land.

Loves Success, Not Money
THE PEOPLE who talk about the business men of this country being money mad, do not know what they are talking about. Not one business man out of a dozen wants to succeed for the sake of the money he makes. He wants to succeed for the sake of success, knowing that the money will take care of itself if he is successful. There isn't as much money-madness in the land as people generally suppose.
But making money is a measure of success, and we can not get away from it, even if it were desirable to do so. That is to say, where one is successful in any field of endeavor, he is going to receive a monetary reward as a rule. The greatest surgeon in the world is likely to be the one who makes the most money—the money comes to him as he progresses in his science, although he may think much more of his profession than of the dollars which flow toward him as he becomes famous. It wouldn't do to say, therefore, that the great surgeon is money-mad because his income is much more than that of the surgeon who isn't so skilled.

GOOD EVENING—The greatest advantage of having an automobile is not in using it but in being relieved from having to make a choice among the hundred or so very best buys on the market.
Here's an article in a paper on "Miles of Smiles," which is some relief, we'll admit, from the gorges of grouches a fellow has to fathom every day.
The man who wants to get the best line on another man ought to pretend to be deaf and dumb, and confine himself to watching.

CUT YOUR DIET AND INCREASE EXERCISE, ONE WAY TO REDUCE

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG
A. B., M. A., M. D. (John Hopkins University)
Normal human beings should not weigh more nor less than about two pounds to the inch in height. When their weight is much more or much less than this, they should endeavor to reduce or increase it. Excessive weight may be due in some cases, perhaps, to heredity. This is a very great factor and sometimes reduction on this ground becomes exceedingly difficult. On the other hand, fatness may be due to a diseased gland or secretory vessel in the brain regions of the mechanism or to overeating and lack of exercise.
Perhaps over-eating, or more generally, careless eating and lack of exercise have more to do with creating a bulky figure than any other one or a group of causes. Abundance of starches, sugars and fats in the diet are guilty of producing a mass of fatty tissue.
The common method of reduction and perhaps the most efficient way is a modified diet and increased exercise. This cannot be employed except when the individual is strong and hearty. Otherwise, the modified diet renders the person weak and faint and prevents her from doing her best mental or physical work.

The Milk "Cure"
The woman who would have a shapely figure, and wishes to reduce some of the fat that seems to mar it, should continue her diet for two weeks or 20 days at a time, after which she should increase it so as to get renewed strength and energy.
The following are some of the most used and apparently most efficient diets employed for the purpose of removing surplus fat.
The milk-cure is one of the simplest known diets, and with a doctor's permission may be used even in the event of disease of the heart or kidneys. It is particularly effective for persons who have an abundance of abdominal fat.
According to the milk-cure, one pint of milk is drunk for breakfast. For lunch you eat six ounces of lean meat with such green vegetables as spinach, green peas, string beans or lettuce. No bread or potatoes are used. If you desire, you may substitute for the green vegetables, turnips, parsnips, cabbage, brussels sprouts or carrots. One-half pint of milk, two glasses of water or a cup of tea with a little sugar completes this meal.
The Other Meals
For 5 o'clock tea, if you have time, drink one-half pint of milk or two cups of tea with a little sugar, or both.
For dinner take one pint of milk and two apples cooked or raw.
If you do not wish to indulge in the mid-day meal, and if you are always at home, you may drink only one pint of milk if you think you are strong enough to go without the rest of the things. In this instance, you may also drink eight to nine glasses of milk a day, with only apples, tea and water.
Drink water only between meals, in the morning and at bed time. Water during meals increases the appetite and makes food absorption quicker and thus tends to destroy some of the effects of the diet.
Besides these diets, exercise is exceedingly effective in removing fat. Swimming, riding and golf are good sports as well as good exercise. Walking three-quarters of an hour in the morning and one-half hour in the afternoon or evening is a simple but good, method of reduction. The heat of the summer should not prevent walking, as much fat is lost through perspiration. The same effect is obtained by exercising in a sweater before bedtime or in the morning.

Answers to Health Questions.
D. E. X. Q.—How can I reduce my weight?
A.—You must not get more than eight hours' sleep out of the 24. You must keep the intestines open and active, and get daily outdoor exercise. You should reduce the amount of sugars, starches and oils which are taken into the body. Food laxatives such as uncooked bran and green vegetables help in the reducing process. Drink lots of water only between times. Do not eat any bread, except gluten, and it is better to have this toasted.
MR. W. F. R. A.—If you will send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your query repeated, I will be glad to answer your questions.
MRS. C. W. A.—If you will send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your query repeated, I will be glad to answer your questions.
M. L. F. Q.—What can I do for pimples?
A.—Apply a little of the following to the affected parts:
Sulphur loti 2 1/2 drams
Balsam Peru 1/2 dram
Camphor 1/2 dram
Green soap 1 dram
Lanolin 1/2 ounce
Vaseline 1/2 ounce
G. C. C. Q.—What can I do for a constant throbbing in my ears?
A.—Have a thorough examination made of your ears, by a nose, throat and ear surgeon.
DUTRO. A.—If you will send a stamped self-addressed envelope with your query repeated I will be glad to answer your questions.
C. D. S. Q.—Please tell me what is the normal blood pressure of a woman aged 58 years?
A.—Blood pressure is 100 plus your age, which makes 158.
MRS. E. M. B. Q.—What do you advise for high blood pressure?
A.—Roughly, your age plus 100 gives you your blood pressure. Perhaps you need more sleep and rest. Try not to over-exert yourself. Keep the skin and intestines open and active. Taboo hot dishes, salt, pepper, condiments, seasoning, rich foods, nuts, peas and beans. Be massaged daily. Drink much more water daily lots of fresh milk and cream, and a bulgur tablet with your meals. Take one-half grain nitrite of soda in water every four hours. Do not try to treat yourself until a thorough diagnosis has been made.

Short Stories of the Buckeye State

HOW VALLANDIGHAM DIED
It will soon be 50 years since the death of Vallandigham. His spectacular and strenuous career went down in a tragedy which in its startling suddenness matched his eventful life. A man of unquestioned ability and well-informed in the law the failure of the causes to which he allied himself, and his defeat in political life had no effect to keep him from success in his profession and the reconstruction period following the civil war saw him rapidly rising to the highest rank at the bar in southwestern Ohio.
A notable murder trial came on in Warren county in the summer of 1871. A man named McEwen had killed a Butler county man named Meyers—or he was accused of it at least, and the defense had retained Vallandigham to take the leading part of counsel for the accused. With him were associated former Lieutenant Governor A. G. McBurney of Warren county and other notable lawyers, and on the evening of June 6 the co-counsel were in conference in a room at a hotel over the points in their plans of defense, they claiming that Meyers shot himself either accidentally or with suicidal intent.
Demonstrating how in his opinion Meyers might have shot himself accidentally, Vallandigham stood before his co-counsel, and picking up a pistol from a bed in the room where they were conferring, placed it against his right side at the floating ribs. He supposed it was not loaded and handled it recklessly. The lawyers had just returned from a walk to the outskirts of the town, where they made some tests with pistols to secure data for use in the trial, and in some way this one was brought back loaded. It was discharged as Vallandigham held it against his side. A dangerous wound for even these days of perfected surgery was produced, and it was realized by both the wounded man and his friends that it would prove fatal. He lived through the night suffering great and increasing pain, and expired at 10 the following morning.

OUR BED-TIME STORY
FOR THE TIMES-DEMOCRAT POLAR

Jack and Jane had been so busy sightseeing in Switzerland that they hadn't had much time to get acquainted with many of the Swiss boys and girls. It happened, too, that there weren't many little folks living near the Widow Aar's. So Jack and Jane were more than delighted when Widow Aar announced that they had been invited to her sister's home and as the plane bumped along the ground to a stop two children, just about the age of Jack and Jane, ran pellmell out of the house toward the plane. Behind them, hurrying as fast as she could, came Widow Aar's sister.
The children soon learned that her name was Mrs. Salter. Rob and Ruth and Jack and Jane were friends before the folks reached the house and were talking away at a great rate. Widow Aar, in letters to her sister, had told all about the children and their friends and a little about the wonderful trip they were taking and Rob and Ruth were curious to hear all about their travels from the children themselves. So, Jack and Jane had to tell them everything, from beginning to end, concerning their trip from the minute Ladydear and Captain Brave alighted from the airplane and discovered Jack and Jane in a fairy house in the woods, near Make Believe town up to the time the plane brought them all to Switzerland.
"Why, I should have thought your father and mother wouldn't have dared let you go with two strangers," said Little Ruth.
"But they weren't really strangers," answered Jack. "When they went home with us to ask mother and father to let us go with them Ladydear found that she and mother had known each other for years. Ladydear and Captain Brave had just been married, you know, and mother was sure Captain Brave must be a nice man or Ladydear wouldn't have fallen in love with him."
Jack and Jane had to answer a million other questions before Mrs. Salter called everybody into her chalet for dinner.

The Stars and Stripes Forever

(Words and music by John Philip Sousa)
Let martial note in triumph float
And Liberty extend its mighty hand;
A flag appears, 'mid thrundrous cheers,
The Banner of the Western land.
The emblem of the brave and true,
Its folds protect no tyrant crew;
The Red and White and starry Blue
Is Freedom's shield and hope.
Other nations may deem their flags the best
And cheer them with fervid elation,
But the flag of the North and South and West
Is the flag of flags, the flag of Freedom's nation.
Chorus
Hurrah for the Flag of the Free!
May it wave as our standard forever,
The gem of the land and sea,
The Banner of the Right!
Let despots remember the day
When our fathers, with mighty endeavor,
Proclaimed as they marched to the fray,
That by their might, and by their right, it waves forever!
Let eagle shriek from lofty peak
The never-ending watchword of our land,
Let summer breeze waft through the trees
The echo of the chorus grand.
Sing out for Liberty and Light,
Sing out for Freedom and the Right,
Sing out for Union and its might,
O patriotic sons!
Other nations may deem their flags the best
And cheer them with fervid elation,
But the flag of the North and South and West
Is the flag of flags, the flag of Freedom's nation
Chorus
Hurrah for the Flag of the Free!
May it wave as our standard forever,
The gem of the land and sea,
The Banner of the Right!
Let despots remember the day
When our fathers, with mighty endeavor,
Proclaimed as they marched to the fray,
That by their might, and by their right, it waves forever!

SWORN EVIDENCE

AN AFFIDAVIT

I, the undersigned do hereby announce to my friends and patrons and the public in general that on the second day of October, nineteen hundred and nineteen (1919) that I will start to close out my stock of clothing and furnishing goods at 28-30 Public Square as my present location has been purchased by the Hoover-Bond Co.

Just twenty-five (25) years ago in October, Eighteen hundred and ninety four I started business in Lima and during this quarter of a century my commercial relations have been most pleasant.

My many friends that I have made in Lima and vicinity have been a constant source of enjoyment to me. Now on my twenty-fifth (25) anniversary I announce my retirement and cordially invite them and the people in this section of the state to join me in my Anniversary Celebration which will be a truly Bargain Demonstration to those who come.

The disposal of such a large stock as I have on hand would be a great task and in order to sell out completely — stock and fixtures I have contracted with The D. Hoppe Company of Chicago to accomplish this herculean task — with their knowledge of merchandising and rapid retailing, this stock should melt like snow before the mid-day sun. In many instances my stock will be closed out at prices less than wholesale cost today. Everything will be sold out completely and to accomplish this it necessitated the price reductions which you will notice through this circular.

In conclusion I wish to state that this is a genuine — bona-fide quitting business sale and my personal guarantee goes with every purchase. Satisfaction or money refunded.

(Signed)

Loewenstein

BY MARGARET GRAHAM

MARRIED AT ST. ROSE

Beautiful in every detail was the marriage this morning at 8 o'clock of Miss Mary Margaret Connelly, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Connelly, 838 West Wayne Street and Clarence J. Stechschulte, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Stechschulte of Leipsic. The nuptial high mass was celebrated at St. Rose Catholic church by Rev. Father Bruksaker, a college chum of the bridegroom. The bride was charming in a simple white georgette dress, and wore a veil of white net, made with Dutch cap effect and wore the bridegroom's gift, a beautiful strand of pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. The young couple were attended by Miss Agnes Stechschulte a sister of the bridegroom and Mr. Robert Connelly, brother of the bride. Miss Stechschulte was very prettily gowned in pink georgette, with a large black velvet hat. She carried an armful of deep pink roses.

The church was decorated with palms and roses, and looked very beautiful and impressive despite the lowering clouds without. Immediately following the ceremony, a sumptuous five course wedding breakfast was served at the Connelly home to just members of the immediate families. The color scheme of pink and white was becomingly carried out in all of the table decorations and accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Stechschulte left later in the afternoon on an extended motor trip to St. Louis, Chicago and other points of interest. The bride wore as her traveling costume a blue gabardine dress suit, with hat to match. They will be at home to their friends after November first, on east Defiance street, Leipsic where the bridegroom has prepared and furnished a home for his bride.

The bride was the recipient of several pretty affairs in her honor given by friends previous to her marriage. She is very well known among the younger people, and has numerous friends who wish her happiness. Mr. Stechschulte is one of the most promising young business men in Leipsic, being engaged in the clothing business with his father.

Guests at the wedding were: Father Bruksaker, Toledo; Mr. and Mrs. A. Stechschulte, Misses Agnes and Amelia Stechschulte, Rosemary Stechschulte; A. D. Stechschulte, all of Leipsic; Norbert Stechschulte of Dayton; John Rampe, Cincinnati; Fred Connelly, Youngstown; Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Connelly; Robert and Ralph Connelly, of Lima; Misses Marie McNamara and Kathleen Hanley, friends of the bride served the wedding breakfast.

Mrs. D. A. Bryson, and her daughter, Mrs. C. C. Michael, who have been guests of Mrs. E. L. Andrews, of West High Street, will return to their home in Montpelier, Indiana, Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. L. Kidder, returned Tuesday evening from a month's wedding trip. They spent several weeks in Maine and while enroute home they visited in New York and Washington.

With an east side housewife it is different. Her methods are direct. When onions that have been costing four cents are raised to five on all the pushcarts that choke her familiar streets, her protest is made in no uncertain terms. She cannot trade at the shops because pushcart prices are all she can afford. The onions must come down to four cents, or she must go without the onions.

So long as onions are not indispensable she renounces onions, or, bagging and fuming, buys as many as she can for her four cents. When her five-cent loaf of bread, however, costs suddenly seven; when the milk she must have for her children is increased to fourteen cents a quart, she does not stop at bagging, she fights. Her primitive mother instinct, fanned by her native emotionalism, becomes a sweeping flame.

It was upon the kindling of one of these flames that Anne chanced, turning into the ghetto street where the Gubins lived. A stout woman with a shawl was negotiating at a peddler's stand for potatoes. Her voice was suddenly raised to furious anger. The bearded huckster matched her tones with his own. As the dispute flared other women stopped on the crowded pavement, listening sympathetically—sympathetically, that is, to the woman. A few joined in. Others gathered round until the street became impassable at that point.

"Gozlan! Robber of my children!" cried the woman, waving a potato-armed fist in the peddler's face. A wild chorus of protest in Yiddish followed. Dozens of other women, whose wrath had been smoldering for days, burst forth with a vigor born of their desperate plight. Heads poked out from windows. Customers ran from little neighborhood shops in the midst of their buying. They, too, had been haranguing and shaking angry flats at the dealers who dared charge seven cents for bread.

NEW CLUB

A group of about fifty young men met Monday evening at the Lincoln Park Fire Station, and organized a club which will be known as the Lincoln Park Amusement Club, with the following officers elected: Ross McCally, president; William Engle, vice president; Richard Nelson, secretary and Carl C. The club urges all young men and women to become a member of this organization for the social benefit as well as the moral uplift of the order.

Another meeting will be held Monday evening, October 6th, and all members are urged to attend and bring with them at least one new member.

A Chance to Live

(By Zoe Beckley)

The Host Defeated

A few days later Annie, on her way down to see Rose Gubins, chanced upon a little curtain-raiser to the melodrama of suffering which had been in preparation upon the east side for months. Annie had not enough knowledge of "uptown" methods to know that when a customer there is overcharged at his provision store he protests, amiably or otherwise, according to his disposition. The matter is explained or not, according to the disposition of the proprietor. If the adjustment is not satisfactory, the up-towner takes his trade elsewhere. That ends it, except that if the price is still extortionate the prosperous citizen complains that "the cost of living is becoming something outrageous—but what are you going to do about it? And he does nothing, except compare sympathetic notes with friends.

With an east side housewife it is different. Her methods are direct. When onions that have been costing four cents are raised to five on all the pushcarts that choke her familiar streets, her protest is made in no uncertain terms. She cannot trade at the shops because pushcart prices are all she can afford. The onions must come down to four cents, or she must go without the onions.

So long as onions are not indispensable she renounces onions, or, bagging and fuming, buys as many as she can for her four cents. When

XLIV.—A QUIET INTERLUDE

This is an entertaining and unusual story you may start reading any day.

Elizabeth and I spent a pleasant enough three weeks at the seashore. It was a very quiet sojourn. Mindful of Paul's warning about my evident weariness, I determined on a course of absolute rest and went through with it like a Spartan, in spite of temptation. I turned a cool shoulder to the friendly overtures of the few male guests at the hotel and spent the days loafing in a roller chair on the beach, carefully protected by a sunshade, hat and veil. I never cared for surf bathing because the salt water is ruinous to complexions and the frequent wettings to which even the best bathing cap subjects the hair, has an injurious effect. At night I retired early and slept until late the following morning.

Elizabeth Carlton followed the same routine from a different reason. She would sit on the beach for hours gazing out to sea and no attempt at conversation could draw her from her reverie. I knew that she was praying for a ship to sail that would take Captain Chiswold back to England. I grew to admire her more each day and to feel a certain awe for the sincere devotion which she seemed to have given me. I thought of Fan and my other women acquaintances, who, with the exception of Alice, would readily tear me to shreds if opportunity or suspicion offered. And I wondered why the best women are usually what the world terms the worst.

In the end it was Alice who recalled us from our retirement. I found a letter from her one morning on my breakfast tray. "Well dear," it ran, "an important event awaits your presence so pack your trunks and take the first train. Martin is here quite convalescent from his recent injury and awaiting orders for a new post where he can perform limited service for his country. As they may come any day, we are having a wedding immediately.

"Of course you have not forgotten your promise to stand beside me on that important occasion and you must help me a bit with arrangements—you know I always pay tribute to your faultless taste. Have your gown very simple, will you, for it's to be just a quiet home affair, possibly in the garden, if the weather is fair.

"Tell Mrs. Carlton that she must surely out short her holiday and come on for the wedding as I am counting upon her. With the Merediths, the Calloways, who are still with us, George Wharton, Captain Frazier and a few friends of Martin's, the guest list will be about complete. I did expect to ask that charming Captain Chiswold, who has made such an impression here, but he sailed yesterday for England. "Come to me the first possible moment, for I need you.

Alice."

"The coast is clear, Beth," I called triumphantly to Mrs. Carlton who was reading the morning papers in our tiny sitting room. "The terrible dragon is sailing away over the ocean blue and the pretty princess can come down from her tower. Tra la, tra la!"

"You can't mean it!" Mrs. Carlton came to stand in the doorway with a transfigured face.

"It's true! I've a letter from Alice to prove it. He left Monday and we're going home at once to attend Alice's wedding. So run and pack your trunk while I call up about trains."

Three hours later we were on our way. I turned my chair for a last glimpse of the sea.

"I love it! It's the most comfortable thing. When you've watched the waves roll in for an hour, and you know that they have been doing just the same thing since the dawn of creation and will be continuing to do it through eternity, it gives you the only sense of stability in this giddy world."

"I love it too," assented Beth Carlton, because it separates the old world from the new."

I realized that she spoke figuratively and wondered if her thoughts were keeping pace with the ship that bore the man she feared away over the edge of the horizon.

I tried to think of how nice it would be to see Paul again after the first separation since our marriage, but as coolly and adroitly as he himself would have shouldered a rival out of the way, the desire to see Captain Frazier displaced my wifely solicitude.

TODAY—"KIDNAPPED," by Robert Louis Stevenson.
THURSDAY—"GIL BLAS," by Alan Rene Le Sage.

STEVENSON

Robert Louis Stevenson writes in 1883: "I am now a person with an established ill-health—a wife—a certain reputation—and very obscure finances. I now draw near to the Middle Ages; nearly three years ago that fatal thirty struck; and yet the great work is not yet even conceived. Eight years ago, if I could have stung ink as I can now, I should have thought myself well on the road after Shakespeare—and now—I find I have only got a pair of walking shoes and not yet begun to travel."

At this time he and his wife spent one of their happiest periods in their first real home, "La Solitude," in Hyeres. At the end of 16 months he was again flung back into acute suffering. They went to Bourne-mouth, where they lived in "Skerryvore" until after his father's death. Confined to the house—a condition most trisome to his active temperament—his gallant and buoyant spirit nevertheless flamed into expression at the slightest respite from pain and weakness. He wrote "Kidnapped," one of his most brilliant successes and the "wild, symbolic" tale of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," the most popular of all his writings. In 1887 he left the trying climate of the British Isles, never to return. With his family he went to the United States, where he was acclaimed, but his weak condition necessitated an immediate rest at Saranac, N. Y. Here he wrote for Scribner's Magazine the essays including, "The Lantern Bearers," "Dreams" and "Fidus et Umbra," the charm of which is ageless.

KIDNAPPED

By ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON
(Condensation by James B. Connolly.)

It was dawn; the blackbirds were whistling in the lilacs, the mists of the valley arising and melting, when I set out for the house of Shaw. On the forenoon of the second day, coming to the top of a hill, I saw the city of Edinburgh smoking like a kiln below me. There was a flag upon the castle and ships anchored to the blue floor of the Firth, a sight which thrilled me.

I walked on toward Craigmund, making inquiries as I went of my uncle, who seemed to be in no favor thereabout, some giving me a half-civil word, some a scowl or a curse for an answer. It was night, and his house barred and dark when I came to it; and it was a long while before my shouts and knocks brought him to the window from where, with a blunderbuss by way of welcome, he screamed to inquire my business.

It was a mean, stooping clay-faced creature; and a big muckle house and an ill-kept one I saw when at last he let me in, with dirt, mice and spiders having their play of it. Here I stayed some days, the while he sparingly fed me with porridge and a rare half-cup of ale.

One night he gave me 40 pounds, saying it was a debt he owed my father, and with it gave me also a rusty key to the high stair tower.

THIS WEEK, NERVOUS MOTHER

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was very weak, always tired, my back ached, and I felt sickly most of the time. I went to a doctor and he said I had nervous indigestion, which added to my weak condition kept me worrying most of the time—and he said if I could not stop that, I could not get well. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it for a week and felt a little better. I kept it up for three months, and I feel fine and can eat anything now without distress or nervousness."—Mrs. J. WORTHLINE, 2842 North Taylor St., Philadelphia, Pa.

The majority of mothers nowadays overdo, there are so many demands upon their time and strength; the result is invariably a weakened, run-down, nervous condition with headaches, backache, irritability and depression—and soon more serious ailments develop. It is at such periods in life that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will restore a normal healthy condition, as it did to Mrs. Worthline.

MICKY

to plot with his first officer as to how best to come at the money belt. I had no love for the Captain, and also it was scurvy hospitality to a man we had all but drowned; so I warned the stranger of the plot. Surprised he was not put out, asking me would I stand with him. Jacobite though he was, I said I would.

Two doors and a skylight furnished entrance to the round-house. Alan placed me with loaded pistols where I could see to shoot through at whoever might come at one closed door or through the glass skylight. The other door he left open, standing before it with dirk and sword. They came with a rush of feet and many loud cries toward Alan. I heard a shout from him and a cry as of someone hurt. Then came five men with a spare yard for a battering ram to drive my door in. For the first time in my life I fired a pistol; and hit one of them, which drove them back. By then Alan's sword was running blood; and the first mate, he who had murdered the cabin boy, lay dying on the floor. Another lay beside him.

They came to my side, some to the barred door and one dropping through the skylight to the floor, where, after first closing my eyes, I shot him. He dropped with a horrible groan. Another one's legs dangled through the skylight, and him I shot too, he dropped dead atop of his companion. Alan was then drinking one who clung to his legs, and putting the cutlass to another who was coming head on at him. A third held a cutlass over him and yet more were crowding at him through the door. He seemed lost; but he broke clear and, taking his distance, clove one, clove another, and then, his sword flashing like quicksilver, drove the others like sheep along the deck.

We were masters of the brig. Alan embraced and kissed me, saying: "David, I love you like a brother. But O man, am I no the bonny fighter!" and setting down by the table, sword in hand, he burst into a Gaelic song.

The very next night we struck on a reef. I was thrown into the sea, thinking I would drown, but found a spar and with it kicked myself along till my feet found quiet water and dry land. Or the ship or her company I could see nothing. Later I learned that all but the wounded were safe. The ship herself was a total loss to Captain Hoseason, which I did not grieve to hear.

After days of wandering and secret inquiry, for he was one with a price on his head, I found Alan. It was in the same hour that I witnessed the killing of Campbell of Glenure, the man who had been doing the King's will against the Jacobites. The shot came in such fashion that I seemed to be an accomplice. I had to flee or be hanged. It was Alan who secured my immediate escape. For two months thereafter, with red-coats guarding every road and glen, I followed Alan through the country of the Campbells.

It was wet and cold and slim food for us both, with now and then a little something not much better in the hut of a Jacobite. Wearily I grew and full of pain, crawling the wet heather and climbing the ragged crags and hills. Posted bills promised great rewards for our capture—I saw them everywhere—and many there were who knew us for what we were; but never one, poor and miserable though they might be, to speak the word of betrayal. "Such," cried Alan proudly, "is the loyalty of the Highlander!"

We came safe at last to Queensferry and the home of Mr. Rankiellor, who proved a shrewd kindly friend and who at once set about retrieving my rights in the Shaw estate. "Your father," he exclaimed, "was a good man but weak. I loved your mother. To win your mother he let your uncle steal the estates. But he will have them back soon."

Alan aided us greatly in our plans. Half by quick wit and half by sheer boldness, he had my uncle admit his plan to have me kidnapped and sold into slavery in the Carolines. Mr. Rankiellor and his clerk all the while listening in the shadows. And so I came into my own.

And Alan, who made a man of me? All he asked was to be put on the road of his mission. As to that, let me say if I say no more, that he went safe on his way and all went well with him thereafter.

AN UNINVITED GUEST

COME on Charlie!" called Virginia. "I'm going over to Morgan's now!"

She took Bobolink's bridle down and then she noticed how queerly the pony was acting. "Charlie!" she called, hearing a noise. "Quit your fooling. I hear you up there in the loft!"

Rustle, rustle! Thud, thud! Bobolink tossed his head and rolled his eyes. Was that Brother Charlie in the loft? Virginia looked up and then her heart stood still, for she saw a big black shaggy foot with long sharp claws on the top rung of the ladder. You should have seen Virginia run! She bumped into her brother in the yard.

"For the love o' Mike!" he cried. "What's up?"

"There's a-a-animal in the b-b-barn!" panted Virginia. "It has black feet and claws."

"Oh, I say!" Charlie replied. "You're seeing things. You're scared because Mom and Dad are away."

He stepped to the barn door and peeped in. Everything was quiet except the pony who was stamping and rustling about in his stall. Charlie stepped inside to speak to him and Virginia followed, timidly wondering if after all it was only "imagination" that had scared her. But suddenly she saw a black bear scuffling across the floor. He ran between them and the door and then stood up on his hind legs and looked at them with a quizzical expression.

"Quick, the loft!" shouted Charlie, grabbing his sister's hand.

Up scrambled the children while the bear said "Woof" and slumped the air with his big paws.

Charlie ran and got a rope, tied one end with a "square knot" to a rafter and threw the other end out of the little window in the loft. "We'll have to slide down and get into the house," he said.

Virginia was a plucky girl and she did not care to stay with the black bear, so she managed to slide down the rope to the ground, although she skinned her hands. Charlie slid down just in time because the bear was coming up the ladder pulling and blowing like a fat old gentleman. As the children reached the house they saw the black bear squeeze out of the window and come sliding down the rope after them and you may be sure they ran in and bolted the door after them. Virginia rescued their pet cat who was crying at the pantry window.

"I'm going to call up the Clavers—that's where Mom and Dad are," Virginia said. "Hello! Hello! Who is this? Oh, Nancy is my Mom and Dad."

The little low closet where the pots were kept to get out a double boiler for the hominy when Charlie suddenly gave her a push from behind. She tumbled down among the pots and pans and Charlie squeezed in after her calling: "Here, Puss!"

The cat sprang into the closet with the children and Charlie slammed the door shut.

"Oh, Virginia," he said. "The bear is in the kitchen. He came in by the cellar door, which we forgot to lock!" They sat as still as two mice listening to the bear rummaging around. Then they heard a "Woof! Woof! Woof, snuff, snuff!" and "Scratch, scratch!" "Gracious!" screamed Virginia. "It's trying to get in here."

She snuffed! He was. There was no knob on the inside of the cupboard

"This man owns the bear and I guess it's a tame one anyhow."

Out she came, drying her eyes for she had had a bad fright.

They followed the man down the cellar, where the bear sat on a barrel feasting on pickled peaches.

"Garibaldi!" shouted the owner. "I shamed of you! Come hither!"

The bear obeyed quite meekly, shaking his comical head from side to side. He seemed very tame and as the man carried a hand organ the children decided he must be a trick bear.

"I'm very hungry," the man said, smiling and showing his fine white teeth. "I'll make you tea," Virginia said. "Come up to the kitchen."

Down they all sat around the kitchen table to tea, jam and bread and butter and cookies, Charlie and Virginia opposite each other with the bear and the organ grinder at either side. The man said that his bear could dance and they had been going around to fairs and had done very well. It was thus the parents found them when they returned and all the mother could say was, "My land!"

But when she went upstairs and found that the bear had tried all the beds leaving his big foot prints and black hairs on the spreads, and when she peeped into her pantry and found the molasses jar upset and her apple pie eaten, she remarked:

"Well, I'm sure that fellow is a relation of Goldie Locks' Three Bears!" Virginia and Charlie, however, were very much pleased with Garibaldi, who danced for them after supper and after promising to call again bear and master departed on their travels.

Charlie Suddenly Gave Her A Push From Behind

door and no way to hold it shut. In a moment the bear would have the catch off and the children would be at his mercy. Just then there was a loud rapping at the kitchen door. The bear paused snorted and then scampered away. Charlie hurried out of his retreat and opened the back door. There stood a dark short man with black curly hair, who doffed his hat and said, "You gotta da bear?"

"Yes, yes," replied Charlie. "He's in the house. Won't you please take him away?"

"Heem vera bad," said the man. "Come out Virgie!" called Charlie.

TOYS AND USEFUL ARTICLES THAT A BOY CAN MAKE

do good work easily and rapidly, a workman must be a man or boy, must have tools and they should be good ones. Tools are designed for certain purposes and they should be used accordingly. Too often one sees a worker using a tool for a purpose for which it was never intended, even though the right tool is at hand. Such instances are, of course, due to a lack of understanding of the tools and their uses.

To assist those not in a position to secure the information elsewhere, and to correct some possible faults in those who think they understand thoroughly, a series of articles will be presented in these columns giving a brief explanation of the common tools and their use, as applied especially to bench work. The first article, presented herewith, will describe what are known as the LAYING-OUT TOOLS.

Rules come in quite a variety of forms, but the one illustrated are perhaps used more than any others. The one foot steel rule is a very convenient one to have on the bench for small work and because of its thinness, measurements can be laid off along its edge very accurately. In using a thicker rule for making a number of measurements with one setting, it should be placed on edge so the graduations on the rule will be brought close to the work. The two foot four fold rule is very convenient because it folds compactly and can easily be carried in the pocket. This rule has a greater capacity than the one first mentioned, but when folded, occupies less space lengthwise than the other.

Work that does not require great accuracy in its performance may be marked out with a pencil, the point of which should be kept sharp. Where great accuracy is required, as in laying out joints, a sharp knife is essential. Two forms are illustrated. The Sloyd knife is very convenient as a part of the regular bench equipment, but it cannot be carried around in the pocket. If it is desired to have a knife that will answer all purposes, a good jack-knife is recommended. BUT KEEP IT SHARP!

The try-square is essential for testing pieces of stock for squareness, that is, to see if adjacent sides are at right angles to each other. It is also used to lay out lines that are drawn across the grain of the wood, and for testing a piece of stock to see if it is the same thickness or width throughout its length. To keep a try-square in perfect condition, it must be handled carefully. DO NOT USE IT AS A HAMMER! The framing square is much larger than the try-square and is used mostly by carpenters in framing work for building construction, but it is very convenient to have in the shop for work that is too large for the try-square.

The bevel is similar to the try-square. Unlike it, however, it has a movable blade that can be fastened in any position. It is used for laying out and testing angles, just as the try-square is used for laying out and testing right-angles.

The marking gauge is used for laying out lines along the grain of a piece of wood. The head moves along the beam and can be fastened in any desired position. As received from the factory, the spur is set accurately with reference to the graduations on the beam, but it is not likely to long remain so. To insure accuracy, the rule should be used to check each setting. Some workmen plane off the graduations, thus removing any temptation to be guided by them.

To lay out arcs and circles the compass or dividers are used. Both legs of the dividers are metal, while one leg of the compass holds a pencil. The compass can be used for a great deal of work, but where it is desired to lay out anything accurately, the dividers should be used.

In all the work you do, try to select the right tool and use it as its designer intended it to be used. Do not abuse your tools, even though they are inanimate objects.

WEENTY GOES A-NUTTING

WELL," said Uncle Bert, "here we are."

The children—there were four of them—clapped their hands delightedly. Each child had a bag. Eddie and Jim were quite large just like Uncle Bert's Polly was.

They were in the woods and all about them the tall trees seemed to go right up into the sky. The trees were chestnut trees and you must have already guessed the party were out to gather the nuts.

"Now Eddie, as you're the biggest I'll boost you up into the tree," Uncle Bert said. "And Polly can gather up the burrs—be careful of your fingers!"

"Oh, Polly—Jim and I will open them for you, Jim?"

"And Weenty?" asked four voices at once. Uncle Bert looked at Weenty who stood waiting to hear what she should do.

"Dear me!" Uncle Bert cried, "that's an oversight! Well, well, Weenty will have to be the lady of our party, 'm afraid she couldn't ever climb up a tree, and the burrs are so sticky—" quite like porcupines—and I'm most afraid she could never open them, either. But I tell you! Weenty can keep the squirrels off, the raccoons will make away with everything we have if somebody doesn't watch after them."

Of course Uncle Bert was only joking, and Eddie and Polly and Jim laughed merrily at his joke. But little Weenty nodded her head till her curls bobbed.

"There's one this minute!" she cried as she espied two bright eyes peering chased.

"What! That old farmer's dog again! Chippy, you must be more careful and keep up on the trees."

"How can I ever get any nuts if I keep up on the trees?" Mr. Chippy asked.

Well, Weenty found a flat stone was over half of the hole and she managed to pull it away. It made a place big enough to put her head in and there was a little ray of light coming from a chink in the darkness.

She put her finger in the crack and from a funny furry face behind a tree stump.

"My!" Said Mr. Chippy, "It Talks"

"Now, don't you chase them too far," Uncle Bert, called as she ran towards the stump. "You might get lost. Now Captain Eddie, let's see how nimbly you can climb my shoulders!"

Up went Eddie, down came the burrs. Polly took them up with bits of twigs much to the amusement of the others, and soon Uncle Bert and Jim were busily engaged in getting the nuts from the burrs with knives and stones.

Meanwhile, Weenty looked about the stump for the squirrel. He wasn't there, but she thought she saw a bushy tail wave out from behind another tree, farther on; she ran to the tree and sure enough there was the bushy tail just disappearing into a hole in the roots. She tried to look down the hole, but it was ever so dark inside. When she put her ear down close, though, she heard a little rustling and then, strangely enough she heard a voice.

"Dear, dear," it said. "I was being pulled a bit. It seemed to be a little door and it opened into a little room. The strangest little room, all hollowed out of the ground and lined with moss. Three little beds held three baby squirrels, fast asleep. Mr. and Mrs. Chippy sat at a table that had a lamp, or rather a basket of fire-flies, in place of a lamp, on it.

They both looked toward the door in alarm when Weenty opened it.

"I declare, that's it!" cried Mr. Chippy, "the thing that chased me." And he jumped up in an awful hurry.

Mrs. Chippy, however, did not seem a bit disturbed.

"Why, stupid," she cried, "that's a little girl! I saw lots of them when I lived in the city park. They gave me peanuts and never hurt me. I shouldn't wonder at all but that she chased you to give you some."

"Excuse me," said Weenty then, speaking in the littlest voice she could. "I haven't any nuts just now but I'll bring you some, and I'm very glad you're not scared of me."

"My!" said Mr. Chippy. "It talks!"

He stood in front of the three little beds. "Don't come in," he said.

"I couldn't anyway, Mr. Chippy, I'm much too big, even if I were invited. Did you really live in the park, Mrs. Chippy?"

"Yes, indeed, and very friendly with all the children I was," Mrs. Chippy answered. "But Mr. Chippy has always lived in the country so you must excuse his manners. In the city we had so many nuts that the good children brought us we could hardly store them all but here we have to gather them ourselves for winter. Mr. Chippy is ever so busy all day. See, here is my pantry."

She opened a little door and there was a tiny cupboard with a neat pile of nuts already in it.

"Mr. Chippy is a good provider," said Mrs. Chippy.

"Yes I am," Mr. Chippy agreed quite proudly. "And yesterday I saved Mrs. Chippy and Anna Frederick and Mary's lives."

"Really?" Weenty asked "what happened? A fire?"

"No, you could never guess," and Mr. Chippy looked very mysterious. Mrs. Chippy told

"A porcupine came here and started to dig down our door. O, I was frightened. He would have eaten up Anna and Frederick and Mary and I haven't a ghost of a doubt."

"Goodness!" Weenty exclaimed.

"And he had his great nose just where you have your nose just now," Mr. Chippy said, "when I took my trusty hawthorn club and hit him right on it!"

"Yes," Mrs. Chippy put in, "and he took it away quick enough you may believe, but he was terribly angry and he would come back again."

"He's just full of spines!" Mr. Chippy said, "and if he once touched you he'd prick—O, how he'd prick!"

Just then Weenty felt a tremendous prick on her leg.

"O-o-o-o-o!" she cried, "he's here now. O-o-o, and he's putting his spines in me!" and out of the hole she pulled her head in time to see Uncle Bert, Eddie, Polly and Jim come running toward her.

"What's up?" Uncle Bert cried.

"What's the matter with our poor little Weenty?"

"A porcupine," Weenty began, when Eddie gave a great laugh.

"It's a burr," he said, "see, here it is. You must have rolled on it. You've been sleeping again, Miss Drowsy Eyes!"

"No," Weenty said, "I really did see some squirrels, they're in here, and O, Uncle Bert, do let me have some nuts to give them, won't you please. I can pour them right down this hole, then I'll fix this stone nice and tight so nothing can get in bigger'n a squirrel."

"So you've been making friends with the squirrels, have you?" Uncle Bert asked. "Well, I suppose it's just as good, isn't it? And if we come into their woods to get nuts it's only fair to give them some I'm sure."

"Here's a handful from my bag," "And mine," "And mine," "And mine,"

SOX ONCE OWNED FIVE OF RED PLAYERS

Rousch, Eller, Rath, Allen and Shreiber, Have All Drawn Money From Chicago Club

Chicago, Sept. 30.—World's series.—It is a singular coincidence that five members of the Cincinnati Nationals formerly wore the uniforms of the White Sox—the team they are to play for the world's baseball championship.

Eddie Rousch, star batter and outfielder with the Reds, was with the White Sox for a tryout under the management of Jimmy Callahan in 1913, but was released to Lincoln. Morris Rath, the Reds second baseman also was with the White Sox under Callahan. He was released to the Kansas City club where he came to the front as a 300 hitter. He was signed by Cincinnati last season—and made good from the start.

Signed by Rowland
"Hod" Eller, who has been pitching remarkable ball for the Reds was on the White Sox roster during the spring training trip of 1916, but was released to the Moline club of the Three-I league. Eller started his professional career in the Three-I league, which also produced Clarence Rowland, whom "Kid" Gleason succeeded as manager of the White Sox. Rowland was the first to recognize Eller's major league possibilities and gave him a chance to qualify in fast company.

While the team was in training at Mineral Wells, Texas, Eller, "patted" with Dave Danforth and other pitchers, and picked up a lot of valuable information. His rise in baseball fame with the Reds has been rapid. Like Eddie Cicotte, one of the pitching stars of the White Sox, Eller's best year previous to this season was in 1917. He won ten out of fifteen games. He has been one of the pitching mainstays of the Red's staff this season.

The Sox contributed two more players to the Reds, concerning whom little is heard. They are Henry Schreiber, utility infielder, who was with the Chicago club in 1914, and Artemus Ward Allen, a catcher, who was with Comiskey's club for a short time in 1911, later going to Minneapolis.

LIVING FOWLS REQUIRE

MEAT SCRAP IN RATION

One of the most significant facts in feeding fowls for egg production, as brought out by experiments at the Ohio Experiment Station, is that rations containing approximately 12 per cent meat scrap decrease the cost of feed under present market prices more than 20 per cent and increase the egg production more than 50 per cent, as compared with a ration containing only two per cent of meat scrap. The comparison has held true with both the light and heavier breeds of poultry.

A ration in which the grain mixture was made up of three parts corn and one part wheat and the dry mash mixture of two parts by weight ground corn, one part bran, and two parts meat scrap has given satisfactory results. The fowls consumed twice as much grain as mash.

BANDITS GET JEWELRY

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30.—Three armed bandits entered the jewelry store of Jacob Mayers in the East End section at noon, bound and gagged Jacob Mayers, Jr., son of the proprietor, the only occupant of the store at the time and escaped with jewelry and money, said to total $10,000.

Solving the Servant Problem

HERE'S one way to keep your maids. Gain their affection, says Ethel Clayton. Treat your maid as you would a sister—or rather, as you ought to treat a sister. It's a method which works, even better with butlers and chauffeurs. Servants are men and women, and it takes more than money to hold them—in fact, this is a scene from Miss Clayton's latest Paramount picture, "Men, Women and Money."

The Coming of Autumn

BY ALICE CHAMBERLAIN

Autumn! The third season of the year, the time of maturity and harvests and color! And school children scuffling thru fallen leaves, curled up on the edges as if to protect themselves from the fine, cold rains of the fall.

Or thin sunshine sifting thru trees and dappling the leaves with gold, and glints of red and brown. And there a tree aflame with orange and red, as if it were having its last wild fling before it died for the winter. The hedges, not too temperamental, a dull chocolate color and staid, awaiting thru the early twanging wind to strip them of their foliage.

Smoke shifting thru the early twilight and lifting from bonfires and sending thrills thru the gathering of neighborhood children. Smoke sending a gray and blue haze across the moonlight, making electric street lights pale yellow by comparison. Warm, thick wraps displayed in the smart downtown windows and women shoppers talking of bolivia and divetyn and fur.

Kindergarten children happy with paste pot and scissors cutting out black cats and broomsticks prematurely, just to get the shivers of delight over Halloween thots.

And evening skies of color no man would dare to paint; vivid pinks and great splashes of violent yellow above the tops of trees on hills.

Autumn! Open fires in the grate and pumpkin pie for dinner, and chestnuts, and a great content for home or out-of-doors, and the wearing of great woolly sweaters to protect against the snappy cold, while the world prepares for the work of winter in snug and happy security.

FAUROT—"THE DANCING WIDOW."

The plot of "The Dancing Widow" which will be presented at the Faurot on Thursday night, concerns a lot of people and their wives and sweethearts, tangled up in a maze of mistaken identities. California and its fashionable hotels furnish the background. A marvelous series of impersonations of famous moving picture artists lends an air of mystery to it which keeps the plot moving along by getting the people concerned into trouble and out of it again and when trouble gets too threatening, the author by an unique manipulation of his characters breaks them into song and laughter. A richly gowned and pretty chorus add to the festivities. The musical score comprises 20 of the latest European song and dance hits that have London and Paris whistling them up and down the Mall and Boulevard.

FAUROT—"THE CAPTAIN AND THE KIDS."

E. J. Carpenter and Harry Myers' big cartoon musical comedy surprise "The Captain And The Kids" which has been termed as the biggest novelty and dance shows of the season, will be at the Faurot next Saturday, matinee and night.

It is a musical farce in three acts, built for laughing purposes only, with a cast of thirty odd farceurs and one of the best aggregation of chorus beauties in musical comedy in all the stage finery an offering of this sort calls for

A carload of scenery and effects with a vast amount of special features and 18 song hits will be interwoven so as not to hinder the action of the play, which is fast from beginning to end.

FAUROT—ETHEL CLAYTON.

One of the most prominent members of the cast supporting beautiful Ethel Clayton in her latest Paramount picture "Men, Women and Money," at the Faurot, is Lew Cody, known far and wide among screen patrons as the "male vamp" of the movies.

Some of Mr. Cody's most notable work was done in Cecil B. De Mille's Artcraft masterpiece, "Don't Change Your Husband." In the present picture, Mr. Cody plays the part of a millionaire cynic and idler. When he, as Cleveland Buchanan, becomes acquainted with Marcel Middleton, however, which part is played by Miss Clayton, he finds that his theories are all wrong and this changes his whole viewpoint on womankind. How he finally wins the respect and love of the girl he has insulted is a most interesting feature of the picture.

Others prominent among the cast are Irving Cummings, Sylvia Ashton, Winifred Greenwood, Edna Mae Cooper, Leslie Stewart, Fay Holden, Helen Dunbar, Marie Newell and others. The story was written by Cosmo Hamilton. Added features of the program include the Pathe News and Mack Sennett's new comedy, "Among Those Present." Last times tonight

Her Purchase Price starring Bessie Barriscale is a strong card coming Sunday.

Most of the action of this picture takes place in Cairo, Egypt, and the street and interior sets used are ample evidence that great care has been taken to make them perfect in oriental atmosphere and detail.

Mauna Loa is Again Active as a Volcano

HONOLULU, Oct. 1.—Mount Mauna Loa on Kilauea Island burst into new eruption late last night and a wide stream of lava began pouring down the Kona side, destroying many homes. The residents of the Kona side are reported fleeing to the sea which is a mile distant.

The mountain which is thirteen thousand feet high, first became active three days ago when smoke and gases came from the crater. During the last two days, the eruption had been subsiding until late last night when the lava began pouring down the Kona side. During an eruption in May 1916 a cloud of steam and smoke was sent twenty thousand feet into the air when the peak burst into eruption. Mauna Loa's crater is 12,000 feet across.

FARM TENANTS

Can Borrow Money

The man in this country who most needs credit is the thrifty and industrious farmer. Anything that can be done to help him will in turn help increase production of food, and reduce the cost of living.

This company comes to his assistance by making loans of $25 to $500, listing his farm stock, implements, automobile or other chattels for security and without requiring personal endorsement.

We make loans to land-owners as well as tenants, and to local people as well as farmers, but we specialize in loaning money to men of limited means, on the kind of security everybody has, viz., PERSONAL PROPERTY.

Quick service and careful attention accorded to all patrons.

VIEW WITH ALARM AMERICAN FOOTHOLD

Exports of Coal From United States to France and Denmark Increasing

LONDON, Oct. 1.—British industrial interests view with alarm the gaining of a foothold by American exporters in the coal market of France and Denmark. Industrial disputes in Great Britain have given an American dealers an opportunity to obtain huge orders in quarters formerly supplied exclusively by South Wales mines.

American dealers are said to have contracted for the delivery of over 100,000 tons of coal in France and negotiations are now under way for an additional half million tons. One or two cargoes of American coal already have been laid down in Denmark as sample shipments, orders for which were placed last March during the strike in England, it is stated. The price was said to be $2.50 per ton lower than the English prices at that time.

The iron and steel industries of England also are said to feel their outlook is not very hopeful because of opportunities afforded American competitors through the curtailed English coal production.

Miners' Strike Still Possible By November 1.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 1.—The fourth day of the wage conference between operators and miners of the Lake Seamen's Union here was one of the vital questions solved and with the strike of 400,000 miners on November 1, still a possibility.

Both sides expressed hope that common ground would be found for an amicable adjustment of disputed questions including the status of the war-time contract of 1916 which the operators claim is binding until April, 1920, and which the miners say ceased to be in force with the withdrawal of the United States army from Europe.

Acting President John L. Lewis of the miners, is moving to counteract the contention of the operators that the miners are here without authority.

ST. MARYS, Oct. 1.—Luther Meyer, of Wapakoneta, motorman on the "510," a Western Ohio line car, was the unfortunate victim of an accident, just in front of the New Bremen ticket office.

Mr. Meyer was in the act of turning a switch in front of the New Bremen station, when the street sprinkling wagon passed by. To avoid having the water thrown on him, he stepped to the right of the car just a step and was struck by a Ford driven by Mrs. Roy Botkin of this city. He was knocked down and there is some uncertainty whether the machine passed over his left leg. The bone of the limb was broken in two places.

Mrs. Edith Smith, aged forty-six years and four months, of south Pine street, St. Marys, Ohio, died at 11:40 a. m. Monday, September 29, 1919, at St. Rita's hospital, Lima. Mrs. Smith on Saturday, Sept. 27, 1919, underwent preliminary surgery at St. Rita's hospital, Lima, expecting if conditions allowed to later have major surgery performed for relief from a malignant form of the malady. Her condition even before she left home last week was recognized as very serious. Surgery showed her state of health to be grave. The tragic outcome causes little or no surprise, though sorrow on this account is none the less keen.

It escaped so far as is known. Who had chicken for dinner?

AUTO THIEF FAILS TO SELL A CAR

DELPHOS, Oct. 1.—One car thought to have been stolen by Fred Thomas, of south of Lima, is in the hands of Smith Bros., electrical contractors at Wapakoneta, who are awaiting a notice from the supposed owner. The car was bought from Thomas at his home and, since the disclosure that he had stolen twelve cars, it is supposed that this is also a stolen car. Thomas claims that, however, this particular car was not one of those he stole.

It is to do such things for children, to cut down the death rate of 12,000 a year, that the National Tuberculosis Association and 1,000 local and state organizations are planning to sell Red Cross Christmas seals, so that a bigger and more extensive campaign to stamp out tuberculosis may be carried on next year. REUTHER OPPOSES CICOTTE IN FIRST GAME OF BIG SERIES Both Managers Confident Each Will Capture Baseball's Annual Classic Today.

Big Money is Being Offered For Seats at Event, But None are For Sale.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 1.—Some 33,000 fans prepared to worship at the shrine of base ball at Redland field today, where the Cincinnati Reds, champions of the National League, and the Chicago White Sox, pennant winners of the American League will do battle in the first game of what may be a nine game series for the world's base ball championship. The arrangements for the series have been completed even to the extent of the teams themselves, as an announcement from the headquarters of both clubs gave out the positive information that Reuther, the southpaw Redleg would oppose Cicotte the right hander hurler of the White Sox, while Ivy Wingo will backstop Reuther and Ray Schalk will do the catching of Cicotte's "shine" and knuckle ball.

There is no doubt that the White Sox will go into the fray this afternoon slight favorites. The little betting that has been recorded showed the odds of from six to five to seven to five in Chicago's favor. Considerable White Sox money was in evidence, but even money was demanded with few takers.

That both teams are confident was indicated by the statements from their managers. Manager Moran, of the Cincinnati team said:

"We have clearly earned our way into the series and we will clear our way through it. I believe that we have the better pitching staff. In fact I do not know when a team ever went into so great an event with so strong a string of first class hurlers. I have six men, on any one of whom I can depend for excellent service. My pitcher for the opening game will be Walter Reuther. The team deserves the lion's share of the credit for it is a great ball club which fought its way through the season without a sign of faltering. We are going up against a great ball club, but I think we will hold our own."

Manager Gleason of the White Sox gave voice to the following: "My boys are a great bunch and they are going to be very hard to beat. The team battled its way through the American League with such confidence and such absolute nerve in all the pinches that I have the utmost confidence in each and every player. At the same time I fully realize that we are going to be submitted to a supreme test in this series. I have known Pat Moran for many years and he is a tough man to beat. Also, any club that could stand off the Giants as the Reds did on three different occasions is going to be no easy mark for any club. But I believe my pitchers have been underestimated. We are here to win and we hope to do so."

The two teams took their final practice yesterday afternoon and will rest this morning.

The National Baseball Commission met at 10 o'clock and gave their final instructions to their umpires and agreed upon the ground rules with the managers.

There will be no sale of seats inasmuch as every ticket has been sold and delivered. Probably 50 people waited at the gates all night and they were joined by several hundred early in the morning while within an hour after daylight the crowds had reached a thousand waiting for the gates to the bleachers and pavilion, the unreserved seats, to open.

Numerous offers of $50 and several as high as $100 for a box seat for the game were made around the hotel lobbies last night, but the

LIMA FANS ARE LUCKY

You simply can't get a seat for the World's Series for love or money. Offers as high as $100 have been turned down. That being the case, what chance has the average Lima-fan to witness the big classic?

The Times realized this, and has made special arrangements whereby local fans will be given the opportunity of getting the plays of the games just as they happen.

Every day of the series, promptly at 2 o'clock, a leather lunged person will begin to call out the plays from The Times Building, and fans will get them just as they happen.

After the game, a full report of the pastime will appear in the columns of The Times.

Each play will be described in detail. In addition to the news of these epoch-making contests there will be views and reviews by The Times competent sporting staff and special writers.

fortunate fan who had tickets gave no indication of wishing to profit in a financial way. There were rumors that scalpers were at work but the evidence against them was not forthcoming insofar as could be ascertained.

Fire hose will be laid in the temporary wooden stands by Fire Chief Barney Houston as a precaution. He has assigned 128 firemen to guard the park.

Because they are needed for police duty for the occasion, members of the police quartet, will not be able to sling from the Red's bench prior to the world series games, stated Chief Copelan.

World Series Pointers

Series best five in nine games. Seventh baseball classic to be held in Chicago.

Previous modern championship test was best four in seven games. Longest game in a world's series was October 9, 1916, when Boston Red Sox beat Brooklyn, 2 to 1, in 14 innings, Ruth opposing Smith in the box.

No spectators are allowed on playing fields. It's sixteenth modern world's series.

Three victories is best record any pitcher has established.

White Sox beat Giants four games to two in 1917.

A total of 23 players on each club are eligible to play.

The White Sox and New York Giants in 1917 shared in $152,888.58.

A capacity crowd in 1917 series at Chicago was 32,000.

In 1905 Giants beat Athletics four games to one, all being shut-out victories.

Total attendance at first world's series in 1884 was less than 5,000. Series is expected to set attendance record also receipts figures.

BASEBALL'S NEW 'MIRACLE MAN'

PAT MORAN, PEERLESS LEADER OF THE Reds, who today matches his wits against Kid Gleason in the battle for supremacy of the pastime.

As we gently carry the Bingles to the press old J. Pluv is carrying the inverted sprinkling can, but the weather man in Cincy says it isn't raining to any great extent there.

It can rain today in Lima, but we hope that joy killer over-looks Redland.

Saith the Sage of Haver Creek: "The man who said: "All things come to him who waits," certainly never tried to get a ticket to a world's series game in Cincinnati."

So Reuther is opposing Cicotte on the mound today?

Well, here's hoping the Red, knock the shine off the "shine ball," and the knuckle off the "knuckle ball."

If the Reds wallop Cicotte today, then watch the betting on the series change.

However, if on the other hand the Sox capture, it will not mean so terrible much, for in using Cicotte, Gleason is using his best bet.

What's he going to do until Eddie gets rested?

The White Sox won the American League race by 25 points.

However, the big question is, will the Sox be that far in the lead when the classic ends?

KEEP AN EYE ON PAT DUNCAN DURING THE WORLD'S SERIES

This Youngster Looks Like Another Duffy Lewis, and He May Be the Hero of the Classic Which Opens Today

(BY JAMES F. BURBA)

Now that the World's Series is really on, and in the same issue in which this appears you will read of the first game of the big classic. As a result, there is nothing at present to talk about except the outcome of the huge event, and ponder upon who will prove the hero. We had a similar story on this page some time ago, and since that time we have found out a little more about the big man of the series is liable to be.

While we are on the subject, did you have to stop and think how a fight for a cause abolishes caste, creed and religion? How during the great war, the white race fought side by side with the yellow and black? Well that's about the same way it is with the present race for the big classic.

Some persons might imagine the world is coming to an end, for a man bearing the name of Patrick Duncan is the idol of the Cincinnati fans. Now if his name was Gottlieb, Hausenfeffer, or Schmidt, why it would not seem so strange, but imagine a man with a good old Irish moniker like Pat Duncan being worshipped by the fans of the Rhine city.

Now, we'll admit Pat Moran, another Irishman, is very popular, but the kids don't follow him around the streets. There is not so much loud cheering when he passes across the field. With Duncan it's different. Every kid in Cincinnati knows him. When the youngsters play on the sandlots they imitate his movements, just the same as we used to imitate the wind-up and delivery of Fatsy Flaherty when he was the best bet of the Louisville team in the opening season of the American Association.

Whenever you see kids imitating a player, then you put it down in your little red book he is popular, and that's just what Patricious Duncan is in Cincinnati.

Some residents of Cincinnati are prone to believe that his real name is Duncanschnmidt. However, his real and true name is Duncan, and his parents dubbed him Lewis.

Lewis, however, was a most inappropriate name for a man of Duncan's tendencies, so someone struck the moniker Pat on him. It fit him like "Home Run King" fits Babe Ruth. He was born in Coslton, Ohio, which has produced one other great man in the person of John R. Patterson, of the National Cash Register. Right at the present, however Duncan is a lot more popular than the Daytonian.

While Pat was yet a youngster his people moved to the Hoosier state, and he played ball around Vincennes, Ind. He played bush league ball in Illinois, and after a while pastimed in the old Central League. While performing with Grand Rapids he was gulped up by the Pirates, who let him go to Birmingham in 1917, where he pastimed until the Reds picked him up.

Duncan has been playing left field for the Reds like it has never been played before. The merry populace of the Queen City has forgotten all other Cincy players in its wild frenzy over Duncan. He is cheered as he walks across the field, cheered when he catches a fly, cheered when he hits, cheered when he fans, which, incidentally, isn't often. If Pat doesn't look out, they'll be panning a cigar or a near-beer after him.

The White Sox had better watch this bird closely. He looks like one of those Duffy Lewis type of ball players, who are always most dangerous when there is something worth while at stake.

An extremely simple attachment with which any standard dry cell can be made to serve as a flash light has been patented by a New York inventor.

PERISCOPE WINS FEATURE EVENT

Bay Filly, Driven by Owner Captures Rich Prize at Lexington Yesterday

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 1.—The people, some 7,000 of whom saw John L. Dodge, drive his bay filly Periscope, by Siliho, dam Leola H., by C. F. Clay, to victory in the 27th renewal of the $14,000 Kentucky Futurity here yesterday afternoon, saw the fastest five heats ever trotted by three-year-olds in a race, 2:05½, 2:04½, 2:05½, 2:06½, 2:06½, and they also saw the greatest contest for this most coveted of all the futurities. Periscope, too, was the public's choice, she selling for $500. Brusloff, with Murphy up, $300; Molly Knight, with Mr. Geers in the sulky for the first time since his accident, $120; Brother Peter, with Henry Thomas as his driver, $100; Abbie Putney, with Walter Cox at the helm, $90, and Electron Dillon and Norman Dillon, a couple of outclassed sons of Dillon, in the field for $25.

The opening heat Periscope held the lead, with Molly Knight second, until the beginning of the last eighth where Periscope broke and Brusloff, which had been racing third, went to the front and won easily by an open length.

The second heat was a thriller. It produced an exceedingly close four-horse finish, and the mile was done in 2:04½, the decision going to Brusloff, which won by more than the length of an overworked lead pencil after leading all the way.

The third heat Periscope went away in the lead and stayed there, winning by half a length from Abbie Putney.

The fourth heat Periscope again went away in the lead and remained there, winning easily from Abbie Putney.

The fifth heat called out only the two heat winners. Periscope went to the front and led all the way, winning easily in 2:06½.

Precautions Are Now Being Taken

CINCINNATI, Oct. 1.—Approximately 200 policemen will be stationed in and around Redland field during the world series, announced Police Chief Copelan yesterday. Police Inspector Dennis Ryan will have charge of the detail. All policemen who are not on regular duty are to figure in the extra assignment, doing 12 hours

NIGHT PROGRAM ONLY FOR MEETING OF BANKERS HERE

Attendance Expected to Be Largest Ever Recorded
This Year

PHIL BERG IS COMING

Hon. M. R. Denver, State
President Will Also Make Address

A splendid and interesting program has been arranged by the entertainment committee of Group Number Two of the Ohio Bankers Association, for their 12th annual meeting to be held on Wednesday evening, October 8th, at the Lima Elks Home. It is expected that the attendance this year will break any previous record, as the meeting was postponed last year on account of the influenza epidemic.

Evening Session
Instead of having an all day session, the meeting will only be held in the evening this year, and will commence at 5 o'clock. All visitors and local bankers will register, after which the out-of-town bankers will be guests of the Lima members of the group at dinner to be served in the main dining room of the club. Music throughout the dinner will be furnished by the Harry Holmes orchestra.

The invocation will be given by Rev. Kirk O'Ferrall, and the address of welcome by H. O. Bentley, Judge A. M. Heidelbaugh, Columbus Grove, will make the response. Following this a report of the secretary-treasurer, executive committee, and auditing committee will be given. The annual election of officers will also take place during the business session.

Whitehouse to Speak
The principal address of the evening, entitled "The Last Crusade" will be delivered by Charles W. Whitehouse, of the Union Commerce National Bank, Cleveland. Phil C. Berg, state superintendent of banks, will lead a round table discussion on the New Banking Law. Short talks will be given on topics of general interest by Hon. M. R. Denver, president of the Ohio Bankers Association, and F. S. Stover, president-elect of the same association.

A feature of the evening, and which will be of special interest to visitors is to be a humorous talk by Frank Burkhardt, who will represent the Ohio Taxpayers League.

C. R. Backhus, of St. Marys, is chairman of the meeting; H. M. Davies, Delphos, is acting chairman; and C. P. Palmer, Continental, secretary-treasurer. C. M. Tolan, vice president of the Lima Trust Company, is the only Lima banker who is a member of the executive committee.

He was given an indeterminate sentence in Mansfield reformatory.

COMMITTEEMEN REFUSE TO TELL OF BIG MEETING

Nature of Resolutions Passed is Not Made Known to the Public

COUNCIL IS TO MEET

Tonight and Decide Whether Bond Issue Will Be Voted Upon

As the result of a meeting held last night at the Chamber of Commerce by committees from various local organizations, city council at its special session this evening will be presented with three resolutions calling for action of some kind upon the question of a municipal lighting system, and the proposed $100,000 bond issue. The exact nature of the resolutions has not been made public.

The meeting last night was held behind closed doors, and only the appointed committee and Mayor Simpson were allowed to attend. It is understood the municipal lighting project was thoroughly discussed. According to information received following the meeting about one half of the men present favored the project while the remaining ones were against it.

Want to Know
While nothing definite is known relative to the meeting, it is understood the main point argued was, about who will take care of the electrical needs of Lima's factories in event that a municipal plant is erected. It was shown, where if the lighting contract is taken away from the Ohio Electric Company, a new plant will not be erected, and the present plant is unable to take care of the needs of Lima today.

That being the case, the committees in favor of the municipal plant was asked, what chance will Lima have of securing new industries when they may not be furnished with electricity?

Representative Men Present
The meeting last night followed a suggestion made by B. A. Gramm at a session of Kiwanis Club yesterday noon.

Those who attended last night are:
W. H. Clarke, W. C. Bradley, and Chalmers Brown, from the Chamber of Commerce.

John E. Galvin, and P. A. Kahle, Rotary Club.
Elmer D. Webb, J. J. Wyre, Jesse Montor, Simon Fishel, A. J. Dunn, and F. G. Williams, and Real Estate Board.

Dan Morris, A. W. Tarvin, Gus Holstien and Judge Quail, Citizens' Committee.
B. A. Gramm, and A. C. CaJacob, Kiwanis Club.

Those committees urge that every interested citizen in the city of Lima be present at tonight's session of council, and it is requested that any person who may throw any new light upon the matter before the body do so.

Is Meeting Legal?
Opponents of the proposed municipal system and the bond issue are claiming that Mayor Simpson did not properly word his call for a special meeting of the council.

JAZZY MUSIC NOT THE REAL LEADER

Lima Folks Do Not Buy
Largely of "Raggy"
Music Issues

Are Limaites fond of sentimental, ragtime, jazzy, or high-class music, was the question asked by a Lima Times reporter of Miss Fisher, who for the past five years has been in charge of the music counter at Kresge's 5 and 10c store which probably sells as much popular music as any other store in the city. Miss Fisher stated that it was a pretty difficult question to answer correctly, as nearly everybody had different tastes in regard to the selection of their music.

The greater majority of Lima people, however, with the exception of the young dance "frenzies," do not in particular care for the jazzy style of music. It may have a pretty good sale for a short time, but is not lasting like many of the better pieces. During this fall there has been no end to the sale of "Dear Old Pal of Mine," and the orders for this one piece have had to be sent in again and again.

"Oh, What a Pal was Mary," a song that is quite popular in the larger cities, also has a splendid sale in Lima. Of the dreamy sort of music, "Kentucky Dreams," "Lullaby Blues," etc., all have a fairly good sale, while of course "Sahara," "Sand Dunes," "Out of the East," and similar pieces are quite popular, especially for dancing. "Tell Me What You're Thinking," still retains the public favor, as well as, "As You Were," "Yearning," "I Know What It is to be Lonesome," and many other songs.

Lineman Hurt By Fall From An O. E. Pole

George Hill, lineman for the Ohio Electric was painfully injured this morning when he fell from a pole on which he was doing some repair work, to the ground, a distance of about 20 feet. He was injured about the lower limbs, but it is not thought the injuries will prove serious. The accident occurred at the corner of Center street and St. Johns avenue. Eckert's ambulance removed him to the city hospital.

MARRIAGE LICENSES
Harry L. Biglow, 21, trimmer, Elida, and Elsie D. Teutloff, 19, Lima.
Howard B. Wetherill, 25, oil field worker, Mansville, Wyo., and Lucy Mamie Baber, 21, Lima.

SOUSA MATINEE IS ELIMINATED

Long Railroad Jump Cuts
Program in Lima to Night Concert

Musical lovers of the city will regret that the matinee part of the program for the appearance here next Tuesday, October 7th, of John Philip Sousa's great band, has had to be cut out.

The band comes here from Logansport, Indiana, and railroad connections are so very uncertain that the management had decided to eliminate the matinee performance, for fear that the band could not get here until late in the afternoon.

The night performance will start at the scheduled time, and as there is an immense demand for seats it will be well to secure them early, for with one performance instead of two the demand can hardly be satisfied.

LEAVE YOUR ESTATE IN TRUST.

Has your wife as good a business head as you have? If not, isn't there a great risk of your widow finding a steady shrinkage of your estate after you have gone? Widows have ever been the marks for investment sharks, the playthings of unscrupulous trustees, administrators and trusted friends and the victims of their own anxiety to speculate in schemes that promise glowing, but fictitious, profits.

Why not leave the destiny of your widow's fortune and your children's heritage in the hands of a reliable, trustworthy institution like this that has the facilities, the resources and the business judgment to make sound and safe investments and to manage the financial affairs of your family in a manner that will give you confidence of their security after you have had to forego their protection.
